THE FELINE TIMES

Hallway Under Attack Again

This time, Mewnes has unleashed two new hurricanes to hit the Hallway, but the hurricane-making machine blew up in the process. Meteors went everywhere. After that, the Dollhouse came in and started to attack, with little ships coming across and blowing up the wall that the Bad Guys had made to stop all the water getting into the Kitchen. Meanwhile, sea levels are rising because a water main pipe burst. It exploded because the Basilisk and Nagini

(Voldemort's snakes) attacked it with their tails. It is good/bad, because Mother Coast's beaches may overflow with water. The two rivers that go across the Dining Room (and some underground ones) could get too big and overflow. It also poses a big threat to the Kitchen and the rest of the bad Hallway for flooding. But the Bathroom will not be flooded, because they have built up very big sandbag walls.

New Cat!

This new cat has not been named yet. We found it in our backyard on Sunday the 27th. Daddy gave him some tuna, and after that he came inside and slept in our basement. We took him to the vet, and he had no microchip in him. (A microchip is an identifying tag with a number, and the number is found in a city database that links it to the owner's information.)

Wu-Wu-Wu Zap is trying to blow this cat to smithereens, because Count Yarn and Baron Von String have sided with him, and want to get the cat. Baron Von String is an evil string, and Count Yarn too. The cat has gotten them many times, but they keep escaping. And their string ship has crashed, making a crater in the Dining Room and upsetting an underground river. The ship has since blown up, and now we have access to a fresh underground stream.

This cat has been on many adventures throughout the galaxy, fighting the strings and evil bots. We have not microchipped him yet, but plan to, and will also get him checked up. We hope that the cat does not feel angry towards us, because we will have to give it a shot, like your vaccination. But instead of a vaccination, it shoots the microchip into the cat's skin.

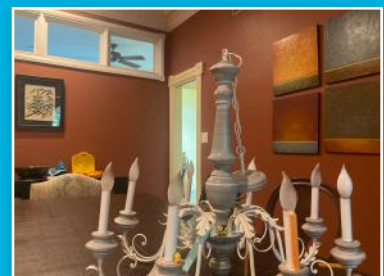

New Cat Arrives

Boot Camp open! There is a boot camp near Binkevis Hotel, and you can sign up by talking to someone in Bingo. The person that you have to talk to is Stalin, another Russian Prime Minister. He runs the boot camp, and is a Russian nesting doll.
