THE FELINE TIMES

Second Trip to England!

On August 12, a party including the Vice Emperor Ethan Koenig and Emperor Blue Eyes Cott drove to Grandpa Hennessy's house in St. Catharines. On August 13 (after the cousins came) they left for Toronto Pearson and flew to London, England's Heathrow Airport. They then visited sights around England (including the famous Battle of William the Conqueror at 1066) then drove to a large house on the Isle of Wight. On the Isle of Wight, Ethanlish troops discovered a battalion of bad guys hiding in their spacious backyard. They visited a lot of sights, and one of the favorites being Carisbrooke Castle. On August 19, they went to London, where they visited a lot of sights and saw new things (and old things).

Fun Places Visited

The point of going to England was to visit these fun places. This included Hampton Court, Carisbrooke Castle, the Tower of London, Plymouth Castle, the Isle of Wight Steam Railway, the Cliffs of Dover, the old Needles Battery, and more. In 2023, they did visit the Tower of London, but Hampton Court (which they were planning on visiting on Tuesday) was actually closed, so they had to take the train back. This year, however, they were successful in visiting Hampton Court Palace. We have only gotten these pictures today due to some confusion earlier, and Chicken and I were not available for the England trip. (We've been traveling a lot.)

Trip to England

In the Isle of Wight, the small party went to investigate the Yarmouth Needles. They found two fortresses: the old Needles Battery (from WWII) and the new Needles Battery (from the Cold War). They found giant cannons in the old Needles Battery, but didn't visit the new Needles Battery.

At Buckingham Palace, the King's Guard was seen marching to their barracks. Buckingham Palace was also viewed, but the barracks are shown here. A lot of people were watching the King's Guard walk about, and it was very exciting.
